FRIDAY.....JULY 8

CARNEGIE'S CARNAGE.

The bloody riots at Pittsburg are the natural outcome of two things; the influx of foreign labor overstocking the market and the infamous greed of Andrew Carnegie.

He came to this country poor, and worked into the iron and steel business. He is now worth fifty millions.

When he first struggled for a foothold in this country, he paid his workmen fair wages. As he grew rich he grew arrogant and when his millions began to pile up on his hands he began a systematic squeezing of his employees.

He finally decided to see how much squeezing they would stand. He gradually lowered the wages and as they submitted without a murmur he put on the thumb screws and his last lowering of wages broke the camel's back and 4,000 men refused to toil by his furnaces and a pittance which hardly kept them from starving.

He then fell back on the regular stand by of capital in such an emergency, and brought 300 hired butchers to the works, armed with Winchester rifles, and the battle began.

It matters not who fired the first shot. The Pinkerton men came there armed to the teeth to kill anyone who resisted them.

He paid his iron and steel moulders, and men who toiled like slaves in the fierce heat of the work shop, a dollar a day, but the bullies, roughs and assassins, who are picked up from the slums and groggeries of the big cities, receive $10 a day for the work of killing American artisans.

So it has reached a pass in this country when the wages of murder reach a higher scale than honest labor.

The workmen faced the Pinkerton men, and after a long day's battle wiped them out and took them prisoners.

It is a sight to make the blood of a man boil with indignation, thus seeing lives of starving laboring men wither away under the hot blasts of Winchester shot down in the streets of their American city in the presence of their wives and families.

Something is wrong in the machinery of the times when one man can pile up fifty millions of dollars while the poor creatures who work for him are obliged to dress their wives and children in rags. If protection to American industries brings about this result, it is not a good argument for protection. We believe it is brought about however by a selfish, cold blooded scoundrel taking advantage of the situation and grasping profits which do not belong to him.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

The first great reform the People's party should give its undivided attention when installed in power is the iniquitous Associated Press and the telegraph system. The gold-bugs have completed control of the telegraph lines, and no reliable news can be obtained from the press dispatches of any importance except such as is favorable to one or the other of the gold-bugs parties. If the people want to know the truth they must rely wholly on private telegrams, which are only transmitted at great cost. The Omaha convention did not dare to rely on even private messages by telegraph, but was compelled to send a committee to interview Gresham as to his candidacy for the presidency. The Associated Press dispatches announced last evening that Norton took the platform and nominated Gresham, when in truth Gresham was not put in nomination at all, according to later dispatches from the same source.

Outside of the money question there is no subject so important as the regulation of the telegraph system. The transmission of general news must be wrested from the hands of political partisans, trusts and combines. Every movement of the people for the assertion of their rights, and every effort of organized labor to protect itself against organized oppression are distorted, misrepresented, twisted and turned in all shapes and channels except the truth by the servants of the capitalist money power.

The Associated Press has long since ceased to be regarded as an enterprise, and truthful news gatherer. Thus in order to furnish news to the people of this city the Appeal does so through the Clements News Agency which frequently distances its rival in the gathering of news.
